

Sex, Insulin & Rock-n-Roll

The truth? It's hard to find advice about how to deal with type 1 diabetes in some of the more personal aspects of your life.

These include a wide array of social situations, including telling your date about diabetes, managing diabetes technology during intimacy, staying safe when having a beer or glass of wine \(for those who are of age\), and many other situations.

The first place you should go to for advice is your diabetes care team. Believe it or not, they've had many conversations about these very topics.

Next, reach out for support. There are some aspects of living with diabetes that you will only be able to talk about with your diabetes care team or another person with type 1 diabetes. These are the people who truly understand what you are going through and can offer meaningful advice, or at least a sympathetic ear.

We've included resources below that should be helpful in navigating these important aspects of life with type 1 diabetes as a young adult.

Updated 2/17/19

Recommended

Diabetes Burnout

Eating on Your Own

Exercise

No Exceptions

Common Fears of Parents of Young Adults

Quick Links

Sex, Insulin & Rock-n-Roll

CDN: The College Diabetes Network uses humor to talk about the touchy topics around diabetes you might encounter as a college student.

Beyond Type 1: Beyond Type 1 addresses some of the more “taboo topics” in diabetes care, teaching those living with Type 1 Diabetes to live their best lives.

JDRF: The JDRF discusses how to incorporate drinking, your social life and how to stay safe.

Students with Diabetes: Information that can be easily shared with Type 3s \(people who love or care about someone with diabetes\)